RENAISSANCE REVIEW

Imagine the Look, Create the Dream...

IN-Office Fat Injections Around the Eyes!

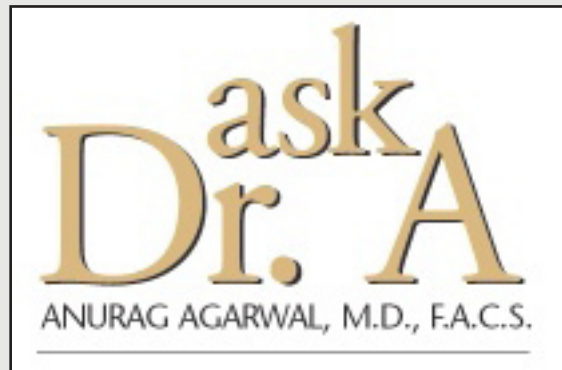

During the aging process, there is often a loss of facial fat volume as it descends, thereby exposing the bony orbital rim of the lower eyelid. This area can be improved with a fat transfer procedure. During this procedure, fat is taken with a fine liposuction cannula from the body, and then injected into the depressions along the inner aspect of the lower eyelids. This is not meant to replace a lower eyelid blepharoplasty for patients with excess fat or sagging skin or muscle of the eyelids. Rather, it is meant to replace volume in those patients whose aging lower eyelid appearance is caused by hollowing.

Dr. Agarwal is performing this procedure in the office under local anesthesia, using ultra fine instruments. It takes about 45 minutes from start to finish. Because of the thin skin in this area of the face, there is the potential for some bruising. Make-up can be worn two days after the procedure. About 30-40% of this fat lasts for several years, and the procedure can always be repeated to add more as needed. This procedure can also be performed on other areas of the face (i.e. temples, etc...)
